Many people want to adopt small animals because they are looking for a low maintenance pet. Small animals need to be handled on a regular basis and their cages need to be cleaned often. If do not have time to interact with a small animal daily please do what's best for the animal and let another adopter take them home. Living in a cage without interaction is not a happy life for any animal.

If you have never owned this species before please be sure to do your homework making sure that you get the proper food, bedding and housing. Some small animals need dust baths, chew toys or supplements in their diet. At the time of adoption you will be given some information, but we ask you talk to your local pet supply stores as well.
